

Imagine a whole new territory
in automotive innovation.

No Boundaries

[A whole new territory in design.]

[A whole new territory in driver freedom.]

> The new Ford Territory has been designed to give the driver a completely new driving experience. Because with Territory you can have it all. Choose from rear-wheel drive with its outstanding performance on the black top or all-wheel drive which lets you go off the beaten track, off to the snow, in fact off to just about anywhere that you want to go. And all the time with the superior ride and handling of a sedan. It's Territory's combination of Control Blade Independent Rear Suspension and Virtual Pivot Control Link front suspension that allows you to enjoy the best of both worlds. There's plenty more to enjoy when you put your foot down and Ford's famous Barra 182 kW in-line six engine kicks in. And whether you're cruising along a city boulevard or negotiating a bush track, the command driving position will put you in control with an elevated point of view so you can see what's up ahead. The Territory will remind you just how much fun driving can be.

[New Ford Territory coming June 2004.]

[A whole new territory in versatility.]

> Haven't you always wanted a car that can adapt to your lifestyle, so when your needs change, your car doesn't have to? The new Ford Territory has been created to give you that versatility. It can be whatever you want it to be. From recreational vehicle to the car for a growing family. It's the innovation in every aspect of Territory's design that makes this possible. It begins with the athletic styling and flows right through to the varying seat configurations that allow seating for up to seven people*. And just to ensure all those passengers have somewhere to put their belongings, Territory has a generous number of storage compartments. Over thirty in all, including innovative ideas like handbag compartments, a washable rubbish bin and a wet and dry storage area in the rear. When you add it all up, there's no other car that can give you the freedom that Territory does. New Ford Territory is available from June 2004, for more information visit www.ford.com.au

* 3rd row seat optional.
